

SUPPORTING KIDS WITH SPECIAL EDUCATIONAL NEEDS

The impact that coronavirus is having on our lives is profound and ever changing. Children all over the country are being asked to adapt at a speed that is jarring and scary. Our special needs children feel this on a level that very few can understand. Parents are left to cope with managing the needs of their children and managing working from home. This seminar is designed to remove some of that overwhelm by offering a lifeline to parents of SEN children, that will help them manage behaviour, education and work to the best of their ability so that parents feel calm and centred, whilst children feel safe and loved.

SESSION OUTLINE

- Real Talk About Your Child's Needs ▪
- Coping with Anxiety Over Change ▪
- Realistic Home Education ▪
- Managing Meltdowns ▪
- Interventions That Feel Right ▪
- Useful websites and resources

SESSION INCLUDES

- Personal attention and feedback in an informal atmosphere
- An invaluable booklet complete with information covered on the session
- Open forum to ask questions

GWEN JONES (SPEAKER)

Gwen studied Psychology at the University of Utah with a focus on child and adolescent development. She then trained to become a teacher in Special Education, working with children with severe behaviour disorders, autism and the at risk population. She has trained many educators on behaviour management and cultural awareness. Gwen has taught in the USA and the UK at the primary and secondary levels. Most recently, she has trained as a psychotherapist, family therapist and parent coach and now works with both children and parents in that capacity. A mother of 4, she is very active in her children's schools serving as a volunteer, Rainbow leader and chair of the PTFA. Political activism has always played a strong role in her life. She and her family have been active in causes such as: LGBT marriage rights, Animal Conservation, and Rock the Vote.