

Reading Matters

For parents/ carers of 0-6 year olds

Instilling in children a love of books is one of the greatest gifts a parent can give a child and will impact on so many areas of a child's life. Not just academically but their social and emotional development and imagination. How can parents encourage children to read when there are so many other things kids enjoy doing, most of which involve a screen of some sort? This practical session explores sharing books with very young children, how children learn to read and what parents/carers can do to support and encourage their child to enjoy the process of learning to read.

Session Outline

- Sharing books with young children
- Emergent reading skills
- The Reading Process' and exploring how children learn to read
- Guidance on do's and don'ts when listening to your child read
- Practical activities and games to develop reading skills
- Selecting books

Session Includes

Personal attention and feedback in an informal atmosphere

An invaluable booklet complete with information covered on the session

Opportunity to ask questions

Facilitator: Rachel Vecht

Trained as a primary school teacher at the Institute of Education in London and taught in both the state and independent sector. She has also worked as a University mentor and lecturer to student teachers.

In 2001, she founded Educating Matters, in addition to becoming a mother to 4 children. She has supported and guided tens of thousands of working parents in the corporate and public sector globally.

She also delivers online parenting courses, speaks in schools, offers one to one consultations to parents globally and comments on parenting for the media, podcasts and blog posts.