

Anxiety in Children Matters

It's tough being a child these days

Children today are being asked to cope with an unprecedented amount of stress and anxiety.

Whilst children are resilient, at some point they may suffer from toxic anxiety/stress overload which can impact their learning, sleep, eating and relationships. In this session, we will discuss anxiety from a child's perspective. We will talk about the short term and long term effects of unregulated anxiety on the developing brain. We will also explore using the bond between children and their healthy adults to combat anxiety. Finally, we will discuss how to build healthy habits in youth that they will carry into adulthood for happier, healthier lives.

---

Session Outline

- Redefining anxiety
- Childhood pressures
- How anxiety shows up in children
- Using healthy relationships to combat anxiety
- Coping mechanisms
- Developing healthy habits for a lifetime

---

Session Includes

Personal attention and feedback in an informal atmosphere

An invaluable booklet complete with information covered on the session

Open forum to ask questions

Speaker: Gwen Jones

Gwen has an MSc in Occupational Psychology focusing on Workplace Wellbeing. She is a trained psychotherapist, relationship therapist and coach working with people all over the world to reduce anxiety and have happier, healthier lives. Gwen has worked with Educating Matters for 8 years speaking about DEI and Wellbeing. She studied Psychology at the University of Utah and then trained to become a teacher in Special Education, working with children with severe behavioural disorders, autism and the at risk population. She has trained many educators on behaviour management and cultural awareness. Gwen has taught in the USA and the UK. A mother of 4, she is very active in her children's schools. Political activism has always played a strong role in her life in causes such as: LGBT marriage rights, Animal Conservation, and Rock the Vote.